CALIFORNIA.

The Schroeder Case

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec 3.—In the Schroeder trial at Oakland to-day the defendant put forward the plea of emotional insanity. Miss Gallagher, a domestic in Schroeder's family, testified that Dr Lefevre confessed to her his intimacy with Mrs Schroeder and employed her as a spy on Schroeder's actions. She told him several times and reported the situation to [illegible], and shortly before the shooting occurred warned him of his danger.

In the Schroeder trial this afternoon the evidence of a number of the prisoner's friends was taken to show a change in his state of mind after the discovery of his wife's guilt. It is probable that the evidence will be all in to-morrow.

The Mussel Slough Case.

In the Mussel Slough case Dr DeWolf was on the stand to-day and the defense tried to show by his testimony that the object of the settlers' military organization was for the purpose of defence against [illegible]. The witness, however, declined to commit himself to that view of the matter. D. [illegible], agent of railroad company for the sale [illegible] of lands, was put on the stand. He testified [illegible] with Doyle and McQuiddy and [illegible] who warned him that if he persisted in the [illegible] in which he was there it would be impossible to restrain some members of the league, also to being called out of bed, by masked and armed men, and told to leave the country. He was treated in a [illegible] manner, and action against him by the [illegible] was not based on personal motives, but on [illegible] with the railroad company.

Indictment Set Aside.

[illegible] court to-day a motion to set aside [illegible] indictment for felony against Sheriff Desmond [illegible]. The consideration of charges of grand [illegible] against expert Kaplan was postponed till [illegible] to give defendant time to plead.

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 3.—Thursday morning while [illegible] Martin the steamer Los Angeles sighted a [illegible], running a double reefed foresail. There was a heavy sea running at the time and a regular [illegible] blowing from the southward. When the steamer [illegible] up to the schooner they lowered sail [illegible], waving their hats, signalling for [illegible] and crying out that they were sinking. The [illegible] lowered a boat and took off the schooner's [illegible]. The schooner was called the Tallie, was of 14 [illegible], bound from San Pedro, there to [illegible] for the fur seal trade. The Los Angeles encountered a gale all the way down and was unable to make any landings except at Monterey. After landing her freight at Santa Barbara the Los Angeles [illegible] for Santa Cruz Island for refuge for the night.

[illegible] Weather in the North [illegible]—Cruise of the "Seventy-six"—Victoria News Items.

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.]

VICTORIA, Dec 2.—The American schooner Seventy-Six, 39 tons, which arrived at this port from Kamschatka on Tuesday last, experienced weather of almost unprecedented severity in the northern seas. She cleared from San Francisco on the 19th of June [illegible] for a sealing cruise, carrying a crew of seven [illegible], Capt. J Potts in command. In October [illegible] encountered the full fury of a typhoon in the [illegible] Japanese sea. The waves swept her decks [illegible] the vessel and carried overboard the mate [illegible] J. Worth, a native of New York, aged 3[illegible]. All the boats were also washed away and the [illegible] too high to permit of of any attempt to rescue the drowning man, who quickly disappeared [illegible] and was lost. Capt Potts states during [illegible] experience of several years in the northern seas [illegible] never witnessed such terrible weather, the [illegible] which was that the voyage of his vessel had [illegible] discontinued. He touched at Copper Island [illegible] obtained a supply of wood and water and [illegible] reached here with a cargo consisting of [illegible] skins. He lost his anchor and chains, and [illegible] the craft was in a position of great [illegible]. She now awaits orders from San Francisco.

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.]

[illegible] TOWNSEND, Dec. 3.—Telegraph operator [illegible] received from Port Gamble this morning and [illegible] the burning of the store at that place with [illegible] its contents this morning at 3.30 A M. The fire [illegible] is supposed to have originated in the chimney of [illegible] fireplace in the outside office and spread [illegible] rapidly that two of the employes, Fred [illegible] and Wm. Shepherd, were compelled to [illegible] the windows of the second story but [illegible] their feet and ankles in doing so, the former [illegible] hands and hair burnt. The wind was [illegible] from the north at the time. Had it not been [illegible] on the roof of Cyrus Walker's residence [illegible] have certainly caught also. The entire [illegible] was destroyed and also the con[illegible] of the Puget Sound telegraph office thus cutting communication with other places until this [illegible]. Two of the large safes fell into the water [illegible] the other remained standing. The loss of goods [illegible] reach $80,000, but the amount of insur[illegible].

How to Bring Up the Boys.

Col. C Younger, the great short-horn breeder of Santa Clara, Cal., is well known in Oregon where his exhibitions of stock have been greatly admired. In an article in the Rural Press, published at San Francisco, he says:

"Let boys learn how to handle to feed, and [illegible] all kinds of stock, they learn to love it. It keeps them at home, it gives them constant employment, it teaches them patience and perseverance and in a large majority [illegible] they become good and prosperous [illegible]." He then tells an incident of his [illegible] as illustration of how farmers may [illegible] their boys:

"[illegible] incident in my boyhood days to [illegible] it is to impress the young mind and [illegible] through life. When my father [illegible] gentleman he purchased a [illegible] had a large lot of hogs. To keep them [illegible] wild, he promised me a sow-shoat if I [illegible] them twice a day until he took them [illegible] at the appointed time he gave me a beau[illegible] about six months old. I gave her [illegible] as a boy would who thought he had [illegible] little sow. In time she had ten [illegible] of them sow pigs. They were all blue [illegible] white list around the body. I have never [illegible] of any property since as I was of that [illegible] pigs. All my boyish attention was given [illegible], they became a part and parcel of my every [illegible], early in the morning and late in the evening I looked after them. They grew rapidly with [illegible]. This being a new country they required little feeding. They increased rapidly, in less than three years my father sold his farm [illegible] higher up the county and soon my hogs [illegible] to be sold. They were gathered up and sold for [illegible]. This was a great sum of money at that day for [illegible], large as it was I loved my blue-listed [illegible] more than that money. This early training, the [illegible] acquired for stock, has shaped my course [illegible] life. No man can succeed at any business [illegible] he loves it. My first start as a boy was in [illegible], fine horses and at last, short horns [illegible] been breeding this noble and useful animal [illegible] more than twenty years. No business that I have [illegible] has given me so much real pleasure [illegible] beautiful color massive and finished form [illegible] noble ancestry everything connected with [illegible] is interesting."

A LETTER FROM T. EGENTON HOGG.

His Proposed Railroad Enterprise, with his Plan of Making Yaquina Bay the Commercial Entrepot of Oregon

NEW YORK, Nov 17 1880.

John C. Short Esq., President N. Y. & N. [illegible] Western Investment Company—Dear Sir: I have replied as requested by you to the letter of inquiry from your correspondent which you sent me asking "what do you say in reply to the statements in the anonymous circular enclosed to you therein."

The standing of these gentlemen justifies a departure in this instance from the rule which forbids notice of anonymous attacks.

I append hereto a copy of my letter which you are at liberty to show in reply to similar inquiries should such be made.

As requested I omit in this copy the name of your correspondent. Yours truly

T. EGENTON HOGG

President O. P. R. R. Co.

[Copy.]

"GENTLEMEN: At the request of Mr Short I reply to your letter of the 16th instant calling attention to an anonymous circular headed, Caution to Investors, which you enclose to the New York New England and Western Investment Company as having been received by your house in Monday morning's mail.

This circular contains attacks upon The Oregon Pacific Railroad Company, some of which give evidence of long preparation and all show apprehension of calamity to the interests of the writer or those who employ him from the success of the new enterprise and great recklessness of statement in his effort to avert the danger.

Overlooking its anonymous and therefore cowardly and presumably false character, I have from regard to yourselves carefully read it and in reply to your inquiry, submit the following remarks upon such parts of its contents as seem at all to justify notice at the hands of the Oregon Pacific R. R. Co., or myself, even had the same statements emanated from a responsible source instead of relying for a shadow of claim to attention on the fact that they had obtained admission under an assumed name to the columns of the Portland OREGONIAN, concealing the fact that that journal in admitting them carefully disavowed all responsibility for the statements made and accompanied them in the same issue with our Prospectus and the statements of our financial agents printed in full in contrast with this anonymous attack which as there published had no part of the offensive introduction and head lines it bears in the circular you send and which was issued by its authors here on the 14th instant, having appeared in Oregon on the 8th and the quickest mail time not allowing the arrival of the paper containing it here until the 16th.

Regarding it, I remark, first that every statement in the Prospectus attacked by this circular is true, if stated as matter of fact, and if stated as matter of estimate or opinion, is a fair deduction from known facts.

This is intended to apply to any statements in the circular not specially noticed hereinafter.

The Oregon Pacific is not claimed to be a completed railroad.

Its mortgage properly covers all the railroad and other property it intends to construct and acquire as well as that now constructed and in possession, of the jointly bound Willamette Valley and Coast Railroad Company, or yet to be acquired by it.

It is proper that the latter should be so bound, for it is to receive important aid, and its most valuable charter and franchise contain features which assure security to the holders of the whole bonded indebtedness, its immunity from taxation on all its property for twenty years being of incalculable value and a complete and sufficient reason for constructing and operating under its charter, instead of under that of the new organization needed for the enlarged enterprise and its wider field.

I leave the 4th paragraph of the circular to show the falseness of the 3d, as to the amount of construction and property in possession of the Willamette Valley and Coast Railroad Company, but remark that the statement that the same has been vainly offered for sale is utterly false.

The grant of lands from the state to the latter company is not limited, as stated in the circular, to those around Yaquina Bay, but in the language of the act covers all the tide and marsh lands in Benton county which fronts on the Pacific ocean for its entire western boundary. Yaquina Bay and Alsea Bay lie wholly within this county, the former being navigable for 25 miles, and the latter penetrating nearly as far, making altogether a line of over 100 miles washed by the tide which rises and falls seven feet and ten inches.

Back of this line are as fertile lands as are to be found in the state.

Will any intelligent honest man fail to appreciate at its proper value a statement, by whomsoever made, that this property has no value and never will have no matter how many railroads are built to it.

I may quote here from a letter under date of Oct 24th ultimo addressed to the OREGONIAN and appearing in that paper the following day from Mr Sol Hirsch president of the state senate of Oregon, an eager partisan of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company and champion of the supposed local interests of Portland, in which he says the grant to the Willamette Valley & Coast R. R. Co. include greater privileges and immunities than were ever granted to any railroad company by the state.

The fifth paragraph of the circular thinks it worthy of notice, that the Oregon Pacific R R Co proposes to repay the Willamette Valley & Coast R. R. Co. a portion of its outlay!

I cite this puerility, but do not propose to answer it. Only one capable of an anonymous attack could have written it.

The prospectus says nothing about the land grant being received direct from the U. S. government.

It says the lands have very great value which is absolutely true and against the statement of this anonymous scribbler on this point, I cite the report of the commissioner of the U. S. general land office for 1870, page 157 and subsequent reports from that office and as to the value and general character of the belt from which they are selected, I refer to statements of eminent authorities cited in the pamphlet dated 1880 and issued by the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company especial attention being asked to the statements on pages 31 to 49.

Many volumes could be filled without exhausting the evidence of like character.

The statements about the price originally paid on the purchase of the lands are absurdly false, but if true would no more relate to or affect the present value as stated truly by the prospectus, than the aboriginal sale of Manhattan island for $22.

The statement that they are mostly mountain wilderness will when it is recollected that they are selections from a belt containing twice the quantity running across a state of unequalled average fertility be seen to be in harmony with the general character of this anonymous libel.

I pass the criticisms made upon the Oregon Pacific map accompanying the prospectus merely asking you to verify the pregnant story it tells, by a comparison with the United States land office map of 1879 and with reports of the U S surveyors in Oregon from 1870 forward.

As to the general features of Eastern Oregon and the rapidity with which settlement is taking place there I again refer you to the authorities cited by the pamphlet of the O. R. & N. Co. pages 31 to 49 which though dated in the present year fails to do full justice to the present increased activity of settlement.

In derogation of the estimates in the prospectus for the freight and passenger business of 1882 this writer makes some statements as to the past so outrageously false as to seem a wanton calumny on the business records of the state. He says the number of passengers has never reached 15 000 (½ of 30 000) in any one year, while in fact the reports of the O. R. & N. Co. show that for the portion of the year ending June 30, 1880 subsequent to the consolidation the number of passengers transported by their line of ocean steamships, was 17 333 while it is known that the P. C. S. S. line carried half that number (or one-third the aggregate of both), and at excessive prices.

Add to these numbers those travellers, who fearing the danger of detention on the Columbia river after a long sea voyage choose instead, the hard journey from California by stage and then add the natural effect of the opening at half the accustomed rates of a short safe and comfortable line with two years growth of population and business and any fair mind the estimates of the prospectus will seem within the mark.

The anonymous writer labors to prove that instead of business flowing inevitably, as we claim into the new short safe and cheap channel as soon as opened that existing interests will then be able to force it still over the old long dangerous and expensive way.

No answer is needed by any sensible man to such arguments. The capital and business enterprise of Portland merchants will be quick to seize upon the advantages of the new and better channel.

Statistics obtained from absolutely reliable sources show that the present year's production of the counties tributary to the Yaquina bay route, exceed our estimates for 1882.

The prospectus does not give $7 50 as the price hitherto per ton to San Francisco but $7 and abundant proof of the correctness of the latter can be given from actual business transactions and official schedules of rates which were the basis of the statements made by us.

The outcome of competition should it arise between a short new line [illegible] and [illegible] long line costing four times as much to do the same service, can be [illegible] anticipated by the former and its probability [illegible] capitalists.

The circular insinuates that the Mary S. Ames of 14 feet [illegible] draught could not enter a harbor [illegible] have 16 feet and which the United States coast survey reports say. Vessels drawing [illegible] feet can enter [illegible] from with perfect [illegible] and with the aid of a tug [illegible] draught.

I remark as to the Mary S. Ames that her captain [illegible] having an opportunity [illegible] their harbor part [illegible] and the insurance agent concerned in the same may [illegible] avail himself of the opportunity [illegible] captain [illegible].

[illegible]

In addition [illegible] directly stated [illegible] respecting congressional recognition of the importance of our harbor [illegible] Yaquina bay that the legislature of Oregon at its session just closed adopted by the unanimous vote of each house a memorial urging congress at its coming session to make without delay a further appropriation of $ 00 000 to complete the improvement of the harbor [illegible] national import[illegible] Oregon [illegible] central outlet of [illegible] Oregon [illegible] and the state [illegible].

I [illegible] my attention and the import [illegible] of the enterprise [illegible] to my charge and [illegible] attack [illegible] passing [illegible] extent [illegible].

CARBON HILL COAL MINE

THE NEW ENTERPRISE OPENED THIS WEEK

Connecting Railroad Completed—Starting Capacity 150 Tons per Day—Progress of the Tunnels

From the [New Tacoma Ledger.]

The railroad connecting the branch line at a point near Wilkeson with the Carbon Hill coal mine, three and a half miles has been completed and is ready for the [illegible] traffic. The Carbon Hill coal mine has been [illegible] and [illegible] to ship [illegible] tons per day. [illegible] mine has an appearance of life and activity. A goodly number of people are there, and a diversity of employment. Aside from the numerous small buildings—cabins which have been erected by the company for the occupation of the miners and other employes—there are the engine and boiler houses, the offices of the superintendent and near by the store and boarding house. [illegible] not far distant from the top of the incline is a substantial building covering the new

SAW MILL

Which is daily producing a goodly many thousand feet of lumber of the best quality. This mill will not only supply the mine with all the lumber that may be required but will have a large surplus [illegible] for making the best quality of lumber. [illegible] idea of the topography of this mining camp may be had by imagining a very narrow ravine, the banks or sides of which are from 800 to 1000 feet deep. A narrow river dashes with foam and roar at the bottom. There is a tunnel on each side of the river connected by a bridge and car track leading to the incline which connects the mines with the works above. This incline is an admirable piece of work constructed under the immediate direction of Superintendent Wingate. It is

900 FEET IN LENGTH

From the top of the bluff to the level of the tunnels its lines appear to be as straight as one could make them. The structure is of cross ties and double track of 20-pound iron rail so that as a train of loaded cars is hauled up one of empty cars descends. From end to end of that track objects appear much reduced in size. The angle of the incline is about 35 degrees and it is no inviting hillside to slide down. But the machinery [illegible] able and cars are so strong that no one need feel any apprehension in riding up or down. The cable is of steel wire and will resist a tension of twenty tons—dead weight. The power is supplied by two high pressure, direct acting horizontal engines of 100 horse power for which steam is furnished by two boilers, each 30 feet long by 4½ in diameter. The capacity of the hoisting apparatus is sufficient to raise

1500 TONS PER DAY

The cars from the mine hold two tons each. The coal is brought in these cars from the face of the drift in the mine, and after being delivered at the foot of the incline, is hauled up and dumped into railroad cars. The railroad being 30 feet below the level at the top of the incline the chutes are easily arranged to pass the coal from the mining cars into the railroad cars. The railroad crosses the incline on trestling about 50 feet from the brow of the hill and say 12 to 15 feet vertically above the track of the incline and then winds around the hill and up a gulch, where the bunkers are to be erected with dispatch.

THE EAST CANGWAY

Of the Wingate vein is being extended night and day along the river, and the coal is improving and becoming harder as increased cover is attained. The cross-cut tunnel upon the south side is being extended rapidly towards the Miller vein and is now about 300 feet from the Wingate vein. This tunnel is 415 feet into the hill having cross cut the Wingate at 125 feet from the entrance. The distance between the two veins is 570 feet leaving 70 feet yet to work before the Miller vein is reached. The cross-cut tunnel on the other side of the river having been driven in about 700 feet on Saturday last cut a vein of

CLEAN RICH COAL

Calculated and supposed to be a certain 6-foot vein which crops out on the river bluff. It is a soft coal containing a great deal of volatile and believed to be superior for gas purposes. Between this and the 8-foot vein there is a stratum of rock 60 feet in thickness, and 70 feet further still through rock there is another 6-foot vein or what is known as No 2 which is bituminous coal very much resembling Wellington in hardness. The tunnel progressing in its present course, will thus reach at intervals varying from 60 to 110 feet, all of the remaining veins of the Carbon Hill series some nineteen in number including two of eight feet each and three of five feet each, the Wellington vein six feet, one eleven and one fourteen feet thick, the Pacific Cumberland measuring three feet and a half, a coal much superior to the original [illegible] for forging and blacksmithing purposes, the Spiral vein,

EMINENTLY A GAS COAL

And one that will probably drive Nanaimo out of the gas market; and the Henry vein, fourteen feet in thickness. The several veins cut and to be cut by the two tunnels aggregate in thickness so far as known about 125 feet. The preparations for shipping coal are now complete and loaded trains will move this way from the present time onward. The first car load of coal ascended the incline on last Saturday, starting from below at twenty minutes before 12 o'clock M. This being the first practical test of the hoisting apparatus, it was thought to be attended with more or less danger but nevertheless Mr Miller the underground foreman was courageous enough to venture upon the trip. The car was filled with coal from the Wingate vein and was decorated with evergreens. Mr. Miller's only companion was his

YELLOW SPOTTED CAT

Which frequently evinced an unmistakable desire to take to the woods and which was per force of its master's brawny fingers an unwilling traveler.

This first car load was dumped at the boiler furnaces and used for making steam. This being an occasion long looked forward to as one of moment signaling, as it did, the opening of the mine Mr Wingate had sent invitations in response to which there were present a number of visitors who afterward the successful accomplishment of the feat were adjourned to the superintendent's office and given further reason to remember the occasion as one of a stimulating character. The mine has been opened to a capacity of 150 tons per day to start with and as larger shipments are needed rooms will be opened up on the gangways to supply the increased demand. As the mine is developed the output will be increased and will be greatly enlarged as the different veins are cut by the cross-cut tunnels. With the number of veins to work upon which this company has, it would not be a difficult matter to develop these mines to a daily capacity of 2000 tons which would be an amount of coal nearly sufficient to supply the entire demands of the Pacific coast market.

About 25,000 bushels of wheat await shipment at Scio.

The wife of Thomas Rowland of McMinnville died last week of consumption.

W. L. Weathered has bought the [illegible] hotel property in Hillsboro consisting of [illegible] for $625.

Levi Ieland the veteran temperance lecturer is again in Oregon, in the employ of the grand lodge, I. O. G. T.

A prisoner confined in the penitentiary died last Tuesday from injuries received while attempting to escape from the Lane county jail.

A lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen was organized at Sheridan last Saturday night with thirty members. How is that for our little city.

D. H. Vedder arraigned before the justice court at Hillsboro for assault and battery, the complaining witness being his father, a feeble man of 65 years, was convicted and fined $5 and costs.

The president has pardoned the mail robber Dan Smith. About five years ago Smith was arrested for robbing the mails near Roseburg and sent to the penitentiary for eight years. After committing the crime Smith left the state and went to Texas where he was followed by J. B. Underwood and arrested.

Southern Oregon.

Hume's new steamer building at Ellensburg is well advanced toward completion. The planking is about finished and the heavy machinery put in.

The taxable property in Jacksonville school district amounts to $311 [illegible]; the tax recently levied will yield a school revenue of $[illegible] for the coming year.

The M. E. church of Ashland has received a fine organ. It has an excellent tone and in sound is well suited to the large audience room of the church.

A Heretic Punished.

[From the Sacramento Record-Union.]

It seems that the enemies of Professor [illegible] Robertson Smith in the free church of Scotland have at last hunted down their quarry. When he was arraigned [illegible] ago in connection with his article on the Bible [illegible] Encyclopedia Britannica [illegible] succeeded in baffling his persecutors. Subsequently [illegible] volume of the [illegible] containing an article on the Hebrew language and literature and this afforded the basis for a second attack upon him. [illegible] accordingly appointed to examine this article [illegible] and it has made a report [illegible].

[illegible]

he alleges [illegible] have been first [illegible] his speaks of the Song of Solomon as a [illegible] drama and the story of [illegible]. Of course the committee [illegible] forward any evidence [illegible] of Smith's [illegible] aberrations [illegible].

THE SOCIAL WORLD.

Following is our usual summary for the week:

PERSONAL.

Miss Bertha Meyer is visiting friends [illegible].

Miss Ella Chalwick is visiting friends at Jacksonville.

Mr C. C. Beekman of Jacksonville has returned to his home after a visit to this city.

Miss Minnie Ross of Oregon City is attending the state normal school at San Jose, California.

Mr [illegible] H. Burnett has returned to her home in Salem from an extended trip to San Francisco.

Rev and Mrs J. W. Sellwood will arrive on the incoming steamer from an extended visit east.

Mr Frank Coleman of Eugene who has been east on an extended trip returned home Wednesday.

Ma[illegible] T[illegible] of Oak and Cal who has been visiting friends in Jacksonville has returned home.

Miss Jennie Clarke of Albany, who has been visiting Mrs J. P. Wyatt for several weeks returned home Saturday evening.

Hon. [illegible] J. Carr postmaster at Seattle returned on the last steamer from a two months visit to Washington and eastern cities.

Prof. [illegible] A. [illegible], formerly president of the Willamette University, Salem, will remove to Portland with his family [illegible] permanently reside.

Miss Lizzie Eaples, of St. John's, took her departure Monday morning for Hubbard where she has been engaged to teach school for a short term.

The venerable Rev F. R. Geary who performed the marriage ceremony of Mr A. H. Tanner and Miss Kelly joined the hands of the bride's parents twenty six years ago.

Mr John Gay, of the Northern Pacific Railroad, Tacoma, was in the city Wednesday to meet his wife and family who had just returned from Canada. They will reside permanently at Tacoma.

Miss Althea Moores of Salem and her twin sister Bertha, and Miss Ollie Chamberlin, have been visiting with Miss Edith Dillon and other friends of Albany. The young ladies returned to Salem on Monday.

Mr and Mrs James Foreman of East Portland left by the last steamer for Mr Foreman's old home in Illinois. They intend making that state their future home. Mrs Foreman was born near this city and has lived here up the time of their departure.

SOCIAL NOTES

Mr & Mrs. W. S. Peters, of Albany, will celebrate their wooden wedding next Tuesday evening.

A very pleasant social was given at Mr Bryson's in Eugene Thursday of last week in aid of the Baptist church.

The Alpha Society had a pleasant and interesting meeting Wednesday night at the residence of Mr E. J. Northrup.

Mr and Mrs J. H. McClung of Eugene will give a social at their residence this evening in aid of the M. E. church of that city.

The Young People's Union of the Presbyterian church held their semi monthly social last Tuesday evening at the residence of Dr Q. B. Bird.

A surprise party was given last evening at the residence of Mr Ira Goodnough, corner Eighth and Yamhill in honor of his daughter, Miss Madie.

Lilly Lodge of Good Templars of East Portland intend giving a public entertainment on the evening of the 15th inst. that being the first anniversary of their organization.

Mr Jim Macbeth of the firm of Karron & Macbeth in this city was married last Monday to Miss Josie, second daughter of Mr James Imbrie of Hillsboro, Washington county.

One of the pleasantest and most fashionable parties of the season was given at the residence of Judge Wm. Strong Wednesday evening. About 100 young persons of the best society of Portland were present.

Mr Tim Drinnin, of East Portland, was married last Saturday evening to Miss Suzanna Griffin, at the corner of First and Market, Rev. Father Fierens officiating. A goodly number of friends were in attendance. The presents were numerous and costly.

The first of a series of weekly church sociables by the First Congregational church East Portland was on Tuesday evening at the brick church in Holladay's addition. Hereafter these social gatherings will be at private residences after the style adopted by that church last winter.

Last Monday evening two hundred or more friends of Rev T. L. Eliot dropped in upon him at his residence, the occasion being the fifteenth anniversary of his marriage. Mrs Eliot had been previously notified and had prepared an excellent lunch. It was a complete surprise to Mr Eliot who was overwhelmed with congratulations.

A properly conducted journal will not publish poetry, which describes unfashionable garments. Hence the Chicago Tribune with its usual sense of what is becoming writes to "Lurline": "Your poem about gray hoods we cannot publish because it is hostility to fact. By looking at any fashion journal you will discover that gray hoods are not fashionable this season."

Last Tuesday evening the numerous friends of Mr and Mrs A. J. Apperson of Oregon City surprised them by calling at their residence in a body and congratulating them on the 15th anniversary of their wedding. Numerous and [illegible] presents were made by relatives and their friends. The evening glided away astonishingly quick the time being passed in dancing, whist, games and the usual interchange of news. The occasion was an unusually pleasant one.

Mr Albert Smith of the firm of Smith Bros., lumber merchants was married last Sunday evening to Miss Laura I. Rittenhouse, one of the teachers of Harrison street school. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. L. Eliot, at the residence of Mr. William Morton and was witnessed only by a few immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom. Mr and Mrs Smith will soon remove to the family residence corner Eleventh and Main streets.

A very pleasant entertainment was given at the new hall in the school building of the Vancouver garrison on Friday evening last. Lieut. F. J. Patten and others have become possessed of a stereopticon which they have provided as one of the regular winter amusements for the families at the garrison and their invited guests. On the occasion referred to a few of the towns people and the families of the officers were present, and for an hour were very highly edified by exhibitions of statuary, street scenes and comic sketches.

A wedding of unusual interest was celebrated on Tuesday morning last at the North Methodist church San Jose the participants being Mr O. A. Hale and Miss Mamie Bassett. The groom is the head of the large dry goods houses of O. A. Hale & Co and Hale Bros & Co doing business at Sacramento, Stockton, Salinas City, Petaluma and San Jose.—S. F. Call.

The bride mentioned in the above notice is a sister of Mrs D. Goodsell of this city and is pleasantly remembered by many who formed her acquaintance while on a visit to her sister in this city last year.

Boston brides are said by a Philadelphia paper to chatter [illegible] bad French at the hotel tables when on their wedding tour. This is talked good news. Any scheme that will result in making a bride use some language not generally understood ought to be encouraged. When the average citizen is obliged to sit calmly by and hear such remarks as: "Please pass me the butter, darling," and "Now I say you're awful mean if you don't let me have a bite of your biscuit," he feels a wild springing impulse to hit somebody with a club and the man in the next seat would cheerfully furnish the club.

Mr T. [illegible] Barker's return on Tuesday evening last to Salem from the session at Toronto, Canada, of the Supreme Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of which body he is one of the representatives from this state, was the occasion of an impromptu reception tendered him by the Odd Fellows of the capital city. After a few hours pleasantly and profitably spent in the hall an adjournment was made to [illegible] restaurant where bivalves were served and a number of speeches made, complimentary of their guest and congratulating him on his safe return.

On the 21st inst. Mr Chas Hirstel of this city was married to Miss Therese Sondheim at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr Wm. Scholle, one of San Francisco's wealthiest citizens. The occasion was a brilliant one and the numerous presents displayed were varied and elegant. Mr and Mrs Hirstel reached this city on the Oregon last Monday evening and were immediately driven to the residence of Mr N. A. Hirstel, West Park street, near E. Later in the evening a number of Mr Hirstel's friends called with a band and serenaded the bridal couple and subsequently they were invited in and passed some time in congratulations and social intercourse.

MILLER-GRAY NUPTIALS AT EUGENE

Mr Frank Miller of the firm of A. S. Miller & Son bridge builders of this city was married Wednesday morning to Miss Marple, daughter of Mr Joseph G. Gray of Eugene and niece of Mrs J. D. Congle of Portland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. R. Geary and was witnessed by a large number of relatives and friends. The young couple were the recipients of a large number of costly and elegant presents. A serenade was tendered by Eugene cornet band. After the wedding breakfast Mr and Mrs Miller took the train for this city where they will reside in [illegible] new home just built by Mr Miller near the Bishop Scott grammar school.

A HARRISBURG WEDDING

Mr and Mrs J. D. Cameron request the pleasure of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Miss [illegible] M Cormick Cameron to Mr William H[illegible] Bradley, on Wednesday, November [illegible], at half past 12 o'clock. Pine Street Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg.

This [illegible] somewhat [illegible] that Mrs. D. Cameron is a year younger than the lady of whom we [illegible] Mrs [illegible] father [illegible].

heard Mr [illegible] in public in a solo on the king of instruments. His introduction to Portland with the Hyman Mackenzie-Campbell Concert Company did not show in full light his accomplishments in this direction. His playing shows fine execution, very accurate [illegible] and feeling and the ability to [illegible] interpret the works of the composers he presents. The piano accompaniment by Mr Simon Harris was what it should have been—in perfect time and full of expression. Miss Flora Abral sang with good effect [illegible] in response to a hearty encore gave "Whistle [illegible] in the Rye." A piano duet [illegible] by Miss Summerfield and Mr Harris [illegible] in an artistic manner closed the [illegible] of the programme.

In the very amusing farce [illegible] Parle Francais which followed Misses Alfa Friendly, Gertie [illegible] Sarah [illegible], Hat [illegible] Lewis and Amelia Friedman and Messrs [illegible] N. Fleischner, Anton Lobe and D. Solis Cohen took part. All acquitted themselves creditably and from the rise to the drop of the curtain kept the audience in roars of laughter. The ladies in the cast, also Misses Abrahams and Summerfield were the recipients of numerous floral tributes. After the farce the floor was cleared and dancing commenced. This amusement was continued until midnight. All present voted the first dramatic entertainment of the Y. M. H. A. a success and it is to be hoped that the society will produce other plays during the season.

A SURPRISE SUPPER AT SALEM

Capital engine company No 1 of Salem held its regular monthly meeting last Thursday evening, President J. Murphy presiding. While it was in session in the elegantly furnished rooms up stairs the lady friends of the company to the number of some fifty or more quietly took possession of the engine room below and after hands set immediately at work providing a substantial surprise for the "fire laddies" above. Tables were hurried in and at once loaded down with all the delicacies of the season and arrangements at once made to accommodate with a sumptuous repast not only those already present but any who might happen to drop in. All things being in readiness the fair ones in double file marched to the rooms above and demanded an unconditional surrender. The boys took the situation in at a glance and although for appearances sake they made a faint resistance the circumstances were against them and adjournment to the rooms below very soon took place. Here the general order of things were reversed the firemen eating at the first table, the ladies waiving their right by courtesy and contenting themselves by choice with the second table, which being replenished proved equally as attractive as did the first. The engine was then rolled out and the floor cleared when as if by magic musicians appeared and dancing was in order, which amusement was kept up until the wee sma' hours when all went home highly pleased with the events of the evening, the ladies delighted with the novelty of the occasion, and the boys grateful for the courtesies extended them by the visitors.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY BANQUET

To celebrate St. Andrew's day about thirty of the members of St. Andrew's society with their friends, sat down to dinner at the Holton house on the evening of the 30th ult. After grace had been said by the chaplain Rev M. Simpson of East Portland the dinner was proceeded with, and a right good dinner it was and to which all did justice. The retiring president Mr W Honeyman took the head of the table, and the president-elect Mr John Cran, the foot with their respective officers around them. After the regular toasts of the evening were disposed of many speeches were made, most of them of course patriotic, and a good many songs sung notably among them the chorus from Pinafore led by Mr Kinross. The festivities were kept up till the wee sma' hours. Following was the programme:

"The Queen" ... By the President

Song—God Save the Queen

"The President of the United states" ... By the President

Song—The Star Spangled Banner

"The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family" ... By the President

Song—"God Bless the Prince of Wales"

"The Land we Left" ... By Mr John Cran

Song—Scots wha hae

Reply by ... Mr J. Moir

"The Land we Live in" ... By Mr Peter Taylor

Song—Hail Columbia

Reply by ... Rev Mr Simpson

"Sister Benevolent Societies" ... By Mr A Stodard

Reply by ... Mr James Laidlaw

The Ladies ... By Mr A. Maxwell

Stevens, chaplain Wm Braden, guide W. H. [illegible], guard J. [illegible] Nells, sentinel Chas Fellows.

Unity lodge No 15 A. O. U. W. held its election Thursday evening with the following result: D. [illegible] Cohen M. W.; F. C. Wheeler F.; C. A. Wheeler O.; V. K. Strode recorder; [illegible] Cohen, financier; Wm Gallick, receiver; Wm Church, guide; Chas Zeigler I. W.; [illegible] Alstead O. W.; Dr Holt C. Wilson, medical examiner; C. T. Belcher, trustee. The officers will be installed Jan 1 1881.

At a regular meeting of Portland Lodge No 27, A. O. U. W., held last evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: Master W. Leo M. Young, Jr.; [illegible] E. Glendorff, for. O. W. H. Scharrel, recorder; Charles D. McGowan receiver; C. J. McDougal, financier; F. Higgins guide; J. G. Dammer I. W.; F. Neal O. W.; M. Wilcox trustee; R. F. Blanton. Dr. Saylor was appointed medical examiner.

SEVEN LIKES FOOLISH.

For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with such a complication of ailments that no doctor could tell what was the matter or cure her and I used up a small fortune in humbug stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flag with Hop Bitters on it, and I thought I would be a fool once more. I tried it, but my folly proved to be wisdom. Two bottles cured her, she is now as well and strong as any man's wife and it cost me only two dollars. Be ye likewise foolish.—H. W. Detroit, Mich.

Query—I wonder if Unc & Myers intends to pay for his goods he is actually giving them away?

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The current number of the Edinburgh Review reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Company 41 Barclay street New York, has the following table of contents: Life of Thomas Graham Lord Lynedoch; Annals of Exeter College; Records of Early English Adventure; The Chemistry of the Stars; Saint Simon's Parallel of Three Kings; Howorth's History of the Mongols; German Present and Past; Trevelyan's History of Fox.

Several of these articles are of unusual interest and value to all readers. "Records of Early English Adventure" gives a rapid survey of the part played by Englishmen in the era of maritime exploration that followed the discovery of America. "The Chemistry of the Stars" is a comprehensive resume of the results of modern spectroscopy, as applied to study of the constitution of stellar bodies. The "Parallel of the Three Kings" is a review based on Saint Simon's hitherto unpublished manuscripts. The first three Bourbon Kings are meant. The article on Howorth's History of the Mongols is an examination of a line of general history hitherto little known to English readers.

In Blackwood's Magazine for November just published by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street N. Y., one of the principal articles is a contribution by W. W. Story, "A Jewish Rabbi in Rome," which calls to mind the poem "A Roman Lawyer in Jerusalem," from the same pen, that attracted much attention several years ago. It is a striking picture of the corruptions of the church in the 15th century under Sixtus IV.

"Reminiscences of an Old Fogy" is an agreeable narrative of voyages to and from India in former days in steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Co's line, with a glimpse of Indian life of the experiences of cadets fresh from school and of girls who in the bloom of youth went out to seek their fortunes.

The other articles are "Army Reform," in which complaint is made of the non-action of the war office, "The Close of the Afghan Campaign," and "The Unloaded Revolver," which is another name for the Turkish question, and is filled with gloomy forebodings.

The periodicals reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co. (41 Barclay street, N. Y.) are as follows: The London Quarterly, Edinburgh, Westminster and British Quarterly Reviews and Blackwood's Magazine. Price, $4 a year for any one, or only $15 for all, and the postage is prepaid by the publishers.

OUR EXPORTS.

It is certainly gratifying to all true Americans to know that of late years our exports have largely exceeded our imports, not alone in such staple articles as wheat and beef, but in almost every branch of industry. Ten years ago nearly all the perfumery and toilet articles used in this country were imported from Europe; to-day we not only manufacture for ourselves, but are large exporters to South America, China, Japan and the Colonies. The immense growth of this particular industry on the Pacific Coast is simply astonishing. Slaven, who is now one of the largest cologne makers in the world, last year exported some 2,000,000 bottles of his famous Yosemite Cologne. For sale by Woodard, Clarke & Co., Portland, Oregon.

GRAND RONDE VALLEY ITEMS.

[TRAVELING CORRESPONDENT OF THE OREGONIAN.]

LA GRANDE, Or., Nov. 30, 1880.

The beautiful snow has attained a depth of over six inches throughout the valley. It has been falling continuously all day, hence splendid sleighing. The merry chimes of the sleigh bells resound from all directions and the "boys" of both sexes are vigorously engaged in utilizing it for coasting and other purposes, such as bombarding ye traveling correspondent and other inoffensive wayfaring wights.

The largest gristmill in the valley, that of Davis & Sterling at Island City, having only recently started up after its temporary stoppage for repairs which added to the increased demand has caused a shortage in the supply of flour, etc., hence nearly all the mills in the valley, (six in number) although running night and day are barely able to supply present demands.

Register Chaplin of the U. S. land office at La Grande reports an unprecedented increase in the number of homestead and pre-emption entries in this district, principally in the Wallowa, Powder river and other smaller valleys.

Register Lichtenthaler of the state land office, also reports a great increase in the entries of state lands principally in the Powder river valleys. Jos. H. Shinn, of Union, late register of state lands, is doing a land office business locating state and other lands for purchasers.

Mr and Mrs Robt. E. Strahorn passed through here a few days since bound for Walla Walla. Mr S. is writing up different sections in the interest of the U. P. R. R.

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, DEC 4, 1880

MR. HOGG AND HIS PROPOSED RAILWAY

THE OREGONIAN gives a very large part of the [illegible] for hearing. Therefore it prints a letter from Mr T. Egenton Hogg in reply [illegible] signed "Examiner," which appeared in the columns of [illegible]. Into the details of the controversy this [illegible] not intend to enter. A word or two, however, on a leading phase of the subject may not be amiss.

From the tone of Mr Hogg's letter it is evident that he conceives he has a mission to change, and in fact completely revolutionize the course of commerce in the northwest. This is a large undertaking, yet we can not but regard it as inspired by a praiseworthy ambition. It is just such a thing as any man has a right to do if he can. Mr Hogg's letter shows that his main plan is to supersede Portland and render it a superfluous and unnecessary factor in the commercial development and economy of the northwest. This too is a commendable ambition. We find no fault with it. In fact we feel like encouraging him to proceed. For this among other reasons we print his letter. We have no idea that it will greatly alarm Portland. For ourselves we can say with confidence that the issue will give us no trouble, as we can any day remove THE OREGONIAN to Yaquina Bay, and publish it there. Others we suppose can pull up as easily. Puget Sound people, however, insist that Portland is to be taken up and carried over there. On this subject there may be rivalry between Yaquina Bay and Puget Sound. But Portland will try to preserve her usual equanimity.

Of Mr Hogg's resources for carrying out his plans we have no positive knowledge, and are not made aware that any one else is as yet more highly favored in this regard. But we may suppose they are ample in his judgment, for the undertaking, else he would hardly say so much about the matter.

But seriously, this subject has given rise to more controversy than there is any possible occasion for. If Mr Hogg can work his enterprise forward, by all means let him do so. It is apparent, however, that it involves the primary difficulties of making a harbor at Yaquina Bay and changing the course of commerce of the northwest from channels established in the first place by nature, and now confirmed by converging railroad lines, either completed or in course of construction and representing capital amounting to twenty millions of dollars, or more. To be plain about Mr Hogg's scheme, it seems to be an adventure, based on no solid capital, but depending on an effort to obtain money on lands of no defined quantity or quality, and of no definite or at least at the present time of no ascertainable or positive value at all in comparison with the magnitude of the proposed undertaking. The prospectus issued by Mr Hogg and his associates was based on the assumption that this route, if it were opened, would do almost the entire business of Oregon at profitable rates. Even supposing Yaquina Bay were made a practicable harbor and the road were built it is apparent that the competition of so many other railroads, not to speak of river transportation, would prevent this expectation from being realized. Let us wish Mr Hogg all possible success in pushing his proposed scheme, but let us have some common sense in the presentation of it. That is, let the absurd notion be dropped that this is the great enterprise destined to swallow up the commerce of Oregon and close all other channels. If Yaquina Bay can be converted into a harbor, and a railway be built to it, the enterprise will be one of much importance to a portion of the state. But as far greater and more powerful interests are drawing elsewhere, this is not likely in any event to become our line of commerce, as Mr Hogg seems to imagine it will. In fact the subject from this point of view hardly appears worthy of serious statement, particularly since nothing has yet been developed which tends to show that the proposed undertaking is more than an adventure, without sufficient basis to carry it. Of course the enterprise, if seriously attempted, depends primarily on the yet unsolved problem of making an entrance for shipping at Yaquina Bay. It is just as well to state the facts about this matter as every other. Nobody has or can have an actual and permanent interest in ignoring the facts of any case in which he is interested. And we take it that no railroad is likely to be built to Yaquina Bay till, at least, it is ascertained whether an entrance can be opened there, and whether government is likely to do it. We do not believe there is anybody in Oregon who desires to throw any obstacle in the way of the effort to accomplish this. Certainly THE OREGONIAN, which has always opened its columns freely to everything offered in behalf of Yaquina Bay and Mr Hogg's proposed railway, has no desire of the kind.

BANKRUPT LAW.

A scheme for a new national bankrupt law, understood to have been drawn by Judge Lowell of the United States district court for Massachusetts, has been circulated extensively in pamphlet form and has been commented upon widely by the press. Judge Lowell follows it with an article in the International Review for December, in which he takes the ground that a bankrupt law is a necessity of modern commerce, since where there is trading upon credit, there must sometimes be insolvency; and that the first great object of such a law—that which affects the property of the debtor, undertaking to divide it equally, so that all those who share the risk shall also share the loss proportionally—is obviously just, so obviously, indeed, that if this were all of the system there would be but one opinion as to its propriety. There is, however, a second function of a bankrupt law, namely, the discharge of debtors from further legal obligation for their existing debts, which he pronounces more open to controversy. But he thinks the expediency of this feature of the law is not doubted by many of those who have given the general subject fair examination.

Upon repeal of the national bankrupt law two or three years ago several states enlarged and improved their insolvent laws, so-called, most of which are bankrupt laws so far as a state can pass such laws. All the states are not equally interested in the subject. It is the commercial states whose interests are most affected by it. But Judge Lowell holds that however much the states may desire to regulate this matter by their own legislation, they are incompetent to do so. For, by the selfish rule of private international law which now prevail among us the courts of each state give a preference to its own citizens who as creditors may be able to seize the property of a debtor within its limits over the just claims of an assignee or trustee for all creditors, if he happens to be appointed by the decree of another state. An act of congress on the other hand is the paramount law throughout the country and a decree under it operates alike all over the union. The objects under the bankrupt law therefore can be effected only by the legislation of the general government.

In all the commercial nations of Europe bankrupt laws are now in operation. But the statutes of these countries, except England and Russia, treat bankruptcy almost as a crime. The French law fixes public [illegible] in respect of voting, and certain other civil rights upon the discharged debtor, however honest he may have been and however willing his creditors may be to relieve him, and this stigma can be relieved only by actual payment of his debts, with interest. The French commercial code largely serves as a basis for the law of the greater part of the continent.

Our law of 1876 was carefully drawn from the best models, and was intended to be permanent. But it was amended till its symmetry was destroyed. It incurred the dislike of creditors, debtors became indifferent [illegible] and it has worked pretty general liquidation. [illegible] have died of three diseases: [illegible] restrictions on involuntary proceedings and [illegible] composition between debtor and creditors. Judge Lowell is of opinion that the merchants of the country want a national bankrupt law, and that they will never have so good an opportunity [illegible] the first and [illegible] of the last statute [illegible] forgotten.

ANOTHER FREEZE PROBABLE

Since the time when the upper country—that is the country east of the Cascade range—began to make its importance felt—and that time has been twenty years or thereabouts—the two sections separated by a mountain barrier whose only means of intercourse is through the Columbia river pass have experienced almost every winter the inconvenience and loss resulting from stoppage of navigation by ice, so that no business could be done between them. These periods have usually been short, though once or twice they have extended to several weeks. A good wagon road from Portland to the Dalles, which ought to have been opened long ago, would have served well the temporary purpose of occasional travel and transmission of the mails. But Portland has never taken the interest in such enterprises that its leading position has required of it. The prospect is now good that communication will be cut off again. We have been governed by the comfortable philosophy of short sighted indolence, that is, it has always been impracticable to make such a road in winter and we have never wanted it in summer. As we are now soon to have a railroad it is hardly worth while to talk about a common wagon road. Nevertheless it ought to be a source of chagrin to the citizens of Portland to observe that our whole country is likely to be shut up for some weeks with no chance of movement in any direction. Much of this inconvenience, which has been of almost yearly recurrence, might have been obviated by proper enterprise on the part of Portland in opening common roads. The prospect now is that mail communication will again be stopped. Department as heretofore will no doubt authorize special service between Portland and The Dalles, but as there is only a trail of the most primitive and difficult kind for half the distance it usually takes from two to three days to get a mail through. It is gratifying to know that the O. R. & N. Co will hurry up their railroad.

A society has been organized in New York under the name of "The National Association for Protection of the Insane and the Prevention of Insanity," of which H. B. Wilbur, M. D., superintendent of the New York asylum for idiots, is president. This society has recently called attention to the European method of treating the insane as compared with that commonly employed in America. The success of the European method of treatment over that pursued in the United States, is said to result mainly from the careful separation of the curable from the incurable insane, from the gradual relaxation of physical constraint, from the provisions which secure employment in the open air when the season is not too inclement, and in workshops adapted to the tastes, strength and capacities of the patients during the winter months. Detached dwellings or groups of little cottages are regarded as far preferable to massive and costly structures, and regular courses in school studies, life in the open air, occupation, amusement, and freedom from constraint are regarded as therapeutic agencies vastly superior to all the resources of pharmacy. Dr Wilbur brings to bear the testimony of a great number of distinguished specialists of England, Scotland, France and Germany, showing that under the improved methods of treating the insane, adopted in those countries within the last fifteen years, the percentage of patients who recover and are discharged is constantly increasing. And he shows also that, according to the official statement made by the American superintendents themselves, the ratio of recovery in this country is constantly diminishing. This difference is the result of the two systems as represented, is certainly startling—involving, as it does, the main purpose for which asylums and hospitals of this class are erected and supplemented with all the resources of science and philanthropy.

Our silver advocates often refer to France as furnishing proof that what is called "the double standard" may be successfully maintained and made beneficial to a country. But it should not be forgotten that France restricts the coinage of silver, and that even this does not avert embarrassment. The reports of the proportion of gold and silver in the bank of France, published from month to month, show a continual advance in the amount of silver on hand and a continual drain on gold. In spite of the most earnest efforts of the bank to retain its gold and get its silver into circulation the gold reserve has decreased during the past year some $45,000,000. The so-called "double standard" of the French monetary system is based on the presumption that fifteen and a half grammes of silver are equivalent as money to one gramme of gold, but continual embarrassment arises from the fact that gold is universal money, adapted to modern use and sought by every one the world over, while silver is local money available only for small payments and refused in all large transactions. The experience of every modern nation shows that silver coin cannot safely be made to serve any other office than that of a convenient "counter" to gold, the universal currency.

James L. Pugh, who has just been elected to the United States senate from Alabama, is described as a roaring cantankerous Bourbon of the Toombs stripe. He was elected to the thirty-sixth congress as a democrat, serving from Dec 5, 1859, to Jan 21, 1861, when he retired from the house, his state having seceded from the union. He was a member of the house in the first and second confederate congresses, serving from Feb 22, 1862, until the surrender. It is surprising that he was content to fill a civil office during the war, for when he was in the federal congress he pretended always to be thirsting for "gore," and to be grieved because he couldn't get enough of it. He was a fire-eater of the most approved pattern—in his speeches.

S. M. H. Byers, United States consul at Zurich, writes a long letter to the New York Tribune in which he states that throughout Europe town and city councils and village authorities vote money out of the public purse to compel their criminals and paupers to emigrate to the United States. These economists have discovered that America is a cheaper poorhouse and jail than any to be found at home. We ought to take the hint and stop the admission of such partners to our political firm. But it is almost or perhaps quite impossible to separate them from the worthy classes who seek our shores.

It would appear from Rowell's recently published newspaper directory as if almost every trade as well as some diseases had an organ. For instance there are the Barbers' National Journal, the Tailors' Review, the [illegible], [illegible] and [illegible] News, the Tobacco Leaf, the Grain Cleaner, and in Chicago is the National Laundry Journal. The most [illegible], however, are the Journal of Inebriety and the American Cancer Journal.

The hotel keepers at Washington are already refusing applications for rooms for inauguration week. Every room in some of the hotels is engaged, and every available space upon which a cot bed can be placed is already allotted. The proprietor of the Riggs house has received application to lodge 1,700 persons from the city of Philadelphia alone. Returning congressmen say it is almost impossible to secure a house at any price.

The regulation was about [illegible] tendency [illegible] against popular liberty and [illegible] the times [illegible] of power and [illegible] institutions [illegible]. It is the stuff which has been doing duty for twenty years. Yet nobody seems alarmed about his liberties [illegible] public. Brethren [illegible] another time.

Russia is making [illegible] petroleum district in her Asian empire. She is building 800 miles of [illegible] the district which is [illegible] with Tiflis, which is now connected with the Black sea by rail. This will open a petroleum district [illegible] of the Atlantic.

The population of [illegible] is [illegible] 132,28? [illegible] furnished [illegible] [illegible] years has been only 1,735. There has been considerable [illegible] of native born, but this is offset by [illegible] of foreign born population.

Richard Henry Stoddard has become literary editor of the New York Evening Mail. Such an accession [illegible] newspaper is [illegible] as an important event.

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, DEC. 4, 1880.

CITY.

GUILTY OF KIDNAPPING.—For the past two days the case of State of Oregon vs. Edward Mordaunt has been on trial in the state circuit court. Mordaunt was indicted by the grand jury for kidnapping. In connection with two other persons, Mordaunt was charged with having very brutally beaten a sailor named Paul Buetner, and of compelling him by threats and duress to leave the ship Bellona after he had signed articles of shipping and received his certificate of advance. It was shown by the testimony that Buetner was forced to leave the vessel by intimidation and that he was not permitted to go on board again before the Bellona sailed from this port. During the progress of the trial a large number of witnesses were examined. The state was represented by District Attorney J. F. Caples and M. F. Mulkey, and Messrs. Durham & Thompson appeared in behalf of the defendant. After argument by the opposing counsel Judge Stott delivered the charge to the jury yesterday afternoon, when they retired for deliberation. On the first ballot the jury stood 11 for conviction and 1 for acquittal. A verdict of guilty, as charged in the indictment, was agreed upon in about three quarters of an hour after retiring. On motion of District Attorney Caples, Mordaunt's bonds were increased to $1000. He failing to furnish the bonds required, was committed to the county jail to await the further pleasure of the court.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.—Thomas Unglow, the husband of Mrs. Unglow, has instituted a suit for damages against Peter Schmeer in the the sum of $2000. Schmeer, it will be remembered, was indicted and tried in the state circuit court for the crime of assault on Mrs. Unglow, with intent to commit an outrage. The jury brought in a verdict charging Schmeer with the crime of assault only, and Judge Stott sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $200 and costs. The husband, deeming the verdict and sentence not adequate satisfaction for the offense, now seeks to recover from Schmeer some substantial damages for what he regards as a flagrant outrage. The complaint alleges that Schmeer violently assaulted Mrs. Unglow, and attempted to outrage her; that in consequence of such an assault she had sustained severe physical injuries from the effect of which she was confined to her bed for several weeks, and had suffered both in body and mind from such assault. Messrs. Northrup & Gilbert have been retained as attorneys for the plaintiff.

THIEF ARRESTED.—Frank Macy alias Frazer was arrested yesterday for having robbed Thomas MacDonald of a silver watch and chain in this city Oct. 21. The affair was kept quiet and placed in the hands of Officer Joseph Day. He tracked his man to the Dalles and found that he had gone to Walla Walla. Returning here, secured an indictment and requisition, went back to Walla Walla only to find that Macy had taken flight a few minutes before his arrival. Macy made his way via Pendleton, Umatilla and the Dalles to this city, and took passage yesterday to Kalama. Day got wind of him, also took passage on the boat, arrested Macy and brought him back last night. The culprit will have a hearing this afternoon before Judge Stearns.

ANOTHER CARRIER.—The East Portland correspondent of the Telegram says: "W. G. Kerns, our efficient and accommodating postmaster, to-day received authority from the postoffice department, to appoint a carrier for the route between this city and Troutdale, a new office on or near the Sandy river, in the northern portion of this county. Troutdale is 14 miles from this city, and is to be supplied with a weekly mail at a cost not to exceed $150 per annum. By the establishment of this route and office, the citizens of quite a large and growing neighborhood are supplied, who have hitherto had to depend on getting their mail from this city. The cost to the department is trifling, and the accommodation great."

MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The regular course of lectures of the medical department of the Willamette University will commence on Monday, December 6. The opening lecture will be of a popular character, by Prof. Harvey, at the college building, at 10 A. M., at which time the public are cordially invited to be present. The subject taken by Prof. Harvey is the "Relation of Food to Climate," with special reference to the causes of diphtheria. The faculty are pleased to announce that the chair of physiology (so long and ably filled by Dr. D. Payton of Salem, and made vacant by his resignation) has been filled by James Browne, LL. D., M. D., of Roseburg, who will make Portland his future home.

STORM BOUND.—Mr. King, who carries the mail between East Portland and Eagle Creek, has arrived from the latter place. He reports the storm in the vicinity of Eagle Creek and Sandy very severe. Should this weather continue for any length of time, Mr. King is of the opinion that the loss to the farmers in stock, in the localities named, will be great, as the suddenness with which the storm came on, has prevented the collecting of stock; and the great destruction of undergrowth by fire the past summer has left but little feed in the woods.

INSANE PATIENTS.—George Steiffer, the German whose insanity was spoken of in yesterday's OREGONIAN, has been adjudged a lunatic by Judge Rice and committed to the asylum. Thursday afternoon Sheriff Hogan, of Douglas county, arrived here from Roseburg, having in charge an insane man named Jim Clements, a man but forty years of age, who, with his family, has been living at Oakland. Clements was taken to the asylum. His insanity was caused by sickness and an affection of the spinal column.

THE MARY TAYLOR.—Thursday the United States inspector and boiler inspector examined the tug Mary Taylor and found the vessel in first class condition and equipment. The necessary papers were issued, and upon receiving her certificate the Mary Taylor took in tow the schooner Katie L. Heron in tow and started down the river. The schooner is bound for Tillamook. Hereafter the Mary Taylor will act as tug on the bar.

ADJOURN.—The state circuit court will probably adjourn until next Tuesday. All petit jurors will be discharged for the term next Saturday. The grand jury will probably be discharged some day next week, as they have about concluded their labors. County court will convene next Monday, and commissioners on Wednesday.

CHARGED WITH LIBEL.—The defendants in the case of the State of Oregon vs Walter Moss and D. K. Warren, indicted for the crime of libel, were to have appeared for trial, but their attorneys, Messrs. Durham & Thompson, interposed a demurrer to the indictment, which will cause a delay. The demurrer will probably be argued to-day.

DEATH AT THE HOSPITAL.—Mrs. Henrietta Goldsmith departed this life at Good Samaritan hospital on Thursday, Dec. 2d, of malignant scarlet fever. The deceased was in the 33d year of her age at the time of her death. The remains were sent to Vancouver yesterday afternoon on the steamer Lurline for interment.

CAUSE OF DEATH.—Coroner Garnold held an inquest yesterday over the remains of Harvey Sadn-, who was found dead in his bed at the St. Louis hotel. A post mortem was made by Dr. J. T. Wells, and showed that death was due to congestion of the lungs. A verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts.

CHANGE OF LANDING.—Heretofore the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co.'s boats, plying on the Willamette river, have been landing at the Ash street dock. Hereafter these boats will land at Ainsworth dock where freight and passengers will be discharged.

BAD CROSSING.—There is said to be a very bad crossing at the intersection of Sixth and Jackson streets in consequence of the sewer improvements which have been made. The earth has settled nearly two feet, making a deep hole so that wagons cannot cross.

GERMAN THEATER.—The dramatic section of the Turn Verein will present to-morrow evening in Turn Halle, two excellent comedies: "Die Unglueckseligen" and "Das Stiftungsfest." The casts include the best dramatic talent in the society.

RETURNED.—Prof. E. C. Taylor, the magician, has returned from a highly successful professional tour through Walla Walla. He will appear at the Dalles this evening. Returning to Portland, he will go to the Sound and Victoria.

TO BE RAFFLED.—The rowboat which was on exhibition at Leonard's hall during the continuance of the mechanics' fair, will be raffled this evening. The raffle takes place at 8 o'clock at the hall. Holders of tickets will note this.

LADIES' FAIR.—The ladies' fair will be held in the Methodist church next week commencing on Tuesday evening, and continuing several days. Lunch will be served each day from 11 to 2 o'clock and supper in the evening.

THE CALIFORNIA.—The steamer California arrived yesterday from Sitka at 12 o'clock. She brought a light freight.

What a man admires most in a woman is good taste. The stock she possesses of that article is usually displayed around the holidays. The dear girls will make presents, but too often their presents evince a lack of taste and good judgment, and if the truth were known, full many a maiden has been doomed to a life of single blessedness through the mistake she made in her Christmas gift. Now girls, you maidens and ye maidens take our advice and go and select one of Woods the Hatter's new style of hats for your holiday present, it makes no difference who you want it for, husband, father, lover or brother. Woods the Hatter keeps suitable styles for all. Take our word for it, your present won't be the less appreciated because it is useful. Ten to one the recipient will say to himself, "O, what a duck she is; how thoughtful; just the thing I wanted." But to get a good, fine article and the latest style at a reasonable figure, don't forget to go to Woods the Hatter, 151 First st., Odd Fellow's Temple. Woods' is the Boss place.

Winter has set in and the man who has waited and waited no longer. An overcoat is now a positive necessity. Don't be alarmed about the prices, as goods are now figured down. CONTINUED COLD.

Navigation Suspended in the Upper Columbia—The Astoria Line Still Running.

The cold snap of Thursday continued all day yesterday. There was entire absence of wind, and only a light fall of snow towards evening. The thermometer varied between 20 and 27 degrees. Ice formed about the border of Couch's lake thick enough to make excellent skating for a number of boys, who indulged in the exhilarating sport. So far the severe weather has interfered but little with ordinary avocations here, and not at all with transportation except to the upper Columbia.

The following dispatches received by the Oregon Railway and Navigation company indicate much severer weather east of the Cascades than here:

8 A. M. DISPATCHES.

Wallula—Cloudy; strong north wind; thermometer 10.

Dalles—Thermometer 10; wind down stream; cakes of ice in river.

Umatilla—Calm; thermometer 10; large heavy ice running.

Bishock's—Thermometer 10; river full of running ice.

Celilo—Cloudy; calm; ice running; thermometer 12.

Cascades—Down stream wind; thermometer 18.

6 P. M.

Cascades.—Northeast wind, lighter snow, thermometer 17. Ice forming very fast at upper Cascades. Little slush going down river here.

The Dalles.—Cloudy, trying to snow; wind down stream; thermometer 15.

Wallula.—Snowing a little; no wind; thermometer 14. River still running full of ice. At 5:30 cloudy, thermometer 12.

Umatilla.—Cloudy and cold; thermometer 14; barometer falling slowly since morning; river fell one inch to-day. River full of running ice.

Celilo.—Cloudy; lighter down wind; ice running, thermometer 18. River fell one inch.

Through communication on the upper Columbia was suspended last night. The Cascades boat made the trip down yesterday through about ten miles of thin ice which is quite damaging to boats. No steamer will leave for the Cascades to-day and by to-morrow unless there is unexpected moderation in the weather all boats on the upper Columbia will have to be tied up. The Astoria and Kalama boat will leave on schedule time and will suffer no detention on account of ice.

There will be no mail this morning to the Dalles or to any points beyond. Inspector Stimpson has telegraphed for instructions to Washington, and until these are received we will have no mail communication with the country east of the Cascades.

PROBABILITIES.

It seems certain that the present state of weather will continue at least twenty-four hours and probably for several days. The barometer was higher and the thermometer lower here all day yesterday than at any other point of observation on the coast except Umatilla, indicating that we are still in the storm "wave." At Umatilla the barometer is ¼ inch higher than here and the probability is that the pressure of wind will continue from that direction for some time.

BRIEF NOTES.

Sleighs are on the increase.

Navigation closed on upper Columbia.

The Elder will be due here some time to-night.

Coasting is splendid and the small boy is happy.

Sleigh riding is certainly a luxury, but it is an expensive one.

The surviving turkey now casts a gloomy glance toward the 25th of the month.

Egg-nog, T. and J. and hot Scotch, are very inspiring while the thermometer is struggling to get to the bottom of the tube.

Mr. Wm. H. Grey, an old and highly esteemed citizen of East Portland, is confined to his house by a severe attack of chronic asthma.

T. J. Carl, Esq., has returned to his home in East Portland. He has been absent in employ of the O. R. & N. Co., on the upper Columbia for several months.

The valuation of property in East Portland, liable to tax last year according to the assessor's roll, was $1,208,055; this year it is $1,320,973 an increase of $112,918.

The First Spiritualist Society holds a conference at Nonpareil hall, Madison and First, at 2:30, and Dr. Clarke speaks at 7:30 on "Saved Sinners—How it is Done." Church members especially invited.

PERSONAL.

Messrs. J. W. Rodington and Ed. F. Robinson, old OREGONIAN types, leave on this morning's steamer for San Francisco, whence they will proceed to Mexico.

Hon. Chandler B. Watson, one of the republican electors, who has been chosen as messenger to carry to Washington the vote of Oregon, will leave this morning on the outgoing steamer for the east.

Mr. Frank T. Dodge, assistant superintendent of the river division of the O. R. and N. Co., will be a passenger on the outgoing steamer this morning. He goes on business and will be absent for a few weeks.

Mr. R. H. Magill of San Francisco, general agent of the Home Mutual Insurance Company, returned yesterday from a trip through Washington and Idaho territories in the interests of his company. He will visit principal points in the Willamette valley and then make a tour of Puget Sound.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

There will be a special sale of jewelry by Gilman & Co. to-day at their auction rooms.

C. Hirstel & Co. have just added to their large stock of notions and stationery a splendid assortment of tobacco and cigars, which will be sold at the very lowest rates.

During the present week Mr. John Van Beurden the jeweler has added largely to his stock and will make further additions on Monday next. He has now a complete assortment of jewelry, silverware, watches, diamonds, etc. which he offers at remarkably low prices. Special pains have been taken in the selection of goods, and purchasers cannot help but be pleased with the display. Note the place, 107 First street south of Ladd & Tilton's.

A BEAUTIFUL DISPLAY.—Going up town last evening our attention was attracted by the large show window of the Oregon Furniture Manufacturing Co., on the corner of First and Yamhill streets. The rear wall is covered by a fine window—drapery made entirely of leather,—a style altogether new in this city, but which is now very fashionable for dining-rooms and libraries in the east. The furniture, consisting of a lounge, three easy chairs, footrests, &c., are upholstered also in leather and, with the other articles on exhibition, reflect much credit upon this enterprising firm. We understand that these goods will not be delivered before next Monday, and anyone who is a lover of really beautiful and artistic work ought to inspect this magnificent display.

Cheap Sheet Music.

Sheet Music at 20 cents on the dollar at Morse's Palace. All lovers of good music can now supply themselves at less than cost. Orders from the country will be promptly filled, post paid, and we invite our city patrons to call at once. Look out for Holiday Goods. C. C. MORSE & CO., 153 First St.

THE COMING CONCERT.

The concert at the theater next Tuesday evening, now under preparation by the ladies' committee of the Open Temperance Society, promises to be one of unusual interest and excellence. The committee have secured the services of Miss Inez Sexton, a young lady of high vocal culture, and great powers as a tragic actress. Her voice was developed by the advice and under the guidance of Clara Louise Kellogg from whom she has letters of highest commendation. She has given concerts in many of the large cities, and has received the warmest praise from Strakosch, Maretzek, and many others of note. Musicians of Portland cannot but feel anxious to hear her.

Mr. Edgar F. Coursen will play a violin solo, with Mr. Simon Harris as accompanist. Mr. Coursen will also accompany the singers. The almost faultless performances of this talented young gentleman have given him a high position in the estimation of lovers of music.

Mr. W. H. Kinross will also sing; and no words of praise could increase his reputation.

Dr. O. B. Bird has kindly consented to assist, with his "crystallino," or glass music. Many have expressed a desire to hear this novel instrument in a large hall with good acoustic properties. It is believed that its crystal tones will have an additional power in such a place, and the doctor's known proficiency of musical taste makes it certain that this will be an interesting part of the entertainment.

Mrs. C. A. Dolph will favor the audience with reading or recitation. Her careful rendition and inimitable character sketches have given her a reputation which is second to none in the state. She is always a favorite.

Mrs. Olive A. Bird will sing a ballad. The lady is known as a conscientious interpreter of music, who forgets herself in the part she is performing.

Two or three other persons of marked ability, and new to Portland audiences, are expected to appear. They will be announced in our next issue, and the full programme published on Tuesday.

The proceeds of this concert are to be used in the purchase of a piano for the open temperance society. No more worthy object could be presented. Every Saturday evening for three years 400 or 500 people have assembled in the interest of temperance, and there are now 4000 names on the roll of membership. Music is always needed at these meetings, and as a piano furnishes a basis of so much music, the possession of one is almost a necessity. Let every one contribute by the purchase of tickets or other service.

Tickets will be for sale by members and at the music stores. Dress circle $1, chairs 75 cents, gallery 50 cents. Reserved seats at Prentice's without charge after Monday morning.

SUGGESTIONS BY A WORKINGMAN.

Plan for a Co-operative Employment Agency.

PORTLAND, Dec. 3, 1880.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

If you would kindly insert the following you would confer a kindness on myself and many other honest, hard-working men, who through sickness or other unavoidable causes, are placed at this time of the year in need of assistance from the hands of our richer brethren, and I hope it will be the means of awakening an interest among the charitable people of this city with a view to forming some society for the purpose of furnishing employment to deserving and needy workingmen. That there are many benevolent citizens of this place, who, if the matter was properly brought to their notice, would gladly further this object, I am well aware. What I propose is, that this society should request all merchants and other employers of labor to notify them whenever they require help, and that a member of this society in turn should be present, say for one hour daily, in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms, who, I am sure, would grant the use of the rooms free and receive the names, trades, &c., of applicants for labor, and from these fill the requirements of employers. The cost of maintaining such a society would be merely nominal, and the loss of time, if the society is composed of 25 members, would be only one hour a month to each member, while the benefits to the working class would be untold, it would be the means of furnishing employment to many an honest though needy man, who by reason of being a stranger in the city, is unable to procure an honest livelihood, as where he seeks for work they may require none, while at the same time some employer that he is unaware of, may be requiring a man for the very work he is seeking to do. The society should recommend no help unless they can bring recommendations as to character from last employer. This society would also be the means of preventing your citizens from being imposed upon by worthless vagabonds who disgrace the name of working men, by their drunkenness and other crimes, who have made it almost an impossibility to distinguish between an honest deserving man, who is really in need of help and who for the time being is obliged to seek a little assistance from his fellow man and the worthless tramp, who too lazy to work when not in jail, spends his life begging, plundering and at times not hesitating to murder.

The establishment of this society would assure the charitable that their gifts were bestowed on deserving objects, as no citizen should give anything to any one claiming to be in need through inability to procure work, unless he can show that he is on the books of the society, as an applicant; to all others refuse aid and in a short time the vagabonds finding they meet no sympathy, will find their way to more congenial parts, or their appropriate abode, the county jail. A VICTIM TO CIRCUMSTANCES.

BEAVERTON
Homestead Tract
FOR SALE ON EASY TERMS,
In Parcels of from One to Twenty Acres.
About 500 Acres of Choice Garden, Pasture and Grain Lands, [illegible]
It is distant from Portland about six miles by the Canyon road, one of the most highly romantic of the roads leading out of Portland. The distance by the Westside Railway is about nine miles. The property adjoins the railway depot.
The land is chiefly level, but fringed with gentle undulations, which are destined to be crowned with villa residences as Beaverton grows in favor as a suburban retreat.
The soil is of unrivalled richness, and repays the gardener's toil with fabulous yields of vegetables and fruits.
We invite those who desire to secure a self-supporting homestead, charmingly situated, with easy access to the city by road or rail, to MAKE AN EARLY SELECTION.
To the industrious gardener one or two acres will afford an ample livelihood.
To the dairy farmer no situation can be more advantageous or accessible.
FOR SUBURBAN HOMES
The convenience, healthfulness and beauty of the situation cannot fail to make the location a favorable one.

SATURDAY MORNING, DEC. 4, 1880.

A FLIRTATION, AND ITS SEQUEL.

"So Howland Hoadley has returned from Europe—not only returned, but has been back on his native heath for three days, and has not even honored me with a call!"

Thus soliloquized pretty Mrs. Godfrey, sitting at the head of her daintily-appointed breakfast table, among whose glass and silver the sunbeams sparkled and played, lighting up the bright morning room, and, unchallenged, darting themselves now and again in the very face of the two lady occupants.

"My dear," Mrs. Godfrey now spoke aloud, and the younger lady full ten years her junior, raised her head in expectation. Ah, the sunbeams were watching, too. They needed just this movement to enable them to play a hide-and-seek among the dark chestnut braids, bringing out a tint of golden in the shadow, until the girl's head seemed irradiated. "You have heard me speak of Howland Hoadley, of course," Mrs. Godfrey continued after a moment's pause. "I see by this morning's Sun that he has returned from Europe. Of course he will call."

Miss Godfrey's lip curled. It was a sweet mouth generally, rich and warm, and tempting; but there were some haughty lines about it which showed its capability to be scornful, too. And very scornful it grew in this moment. Yes, she knew very well who Howland Hoadley was, though she had been a very child when he set sail for Europe, and she not then an occupant of her sister's home—the sister whom men had said Howland Hoadley had cared for as far as it was in his nature to care for anything in these early days, but old Mr. Godfrey's bank stock had been somewhat greater, and so he had become his rival.

It was not destined that he should so continue long, however, for after one short year of marital felicity, he concluded to lay down the burden of life, bank stock and all, and Mrs. Godfrey became a rich widow.

For a time, Howland again fluttered about the flame, until as the world was about to speak with a certain degree of certainty of the result, it was electrified one morning, to discover that Mr. Hoadley had sailed for Europe, intending to remain abroad an indefinite time.

If this was a disappointment to Mrs. Godfrey, she made no sign; but as she utters the words to her sister which tell of his return, the paper held in the small white hand visibly trembles and the breakfast on the plate remains untouched.

Three days she had waited. Will he not come at all? The evening solves the doubt; for, with the stroke of nine, faultlessly dressed, and looking even handsomer and younger than when he left home, Howland Hoadley walks into her drawing room.

Has time, she wondered, dealt so leniently with him?

"Truant!" she said, extending her hand in greeting, and smiling up at him from the low chair in which she reclined.

For answer, he bent low and pressed a kiss upon the white fingers which he held.

"Did you not know that I would come at the first possible moment?" he half-whispered, in low, thrilling tones, when, for the first time he became conscious that some one else was a witness to the little scene—some one who rose, as if impatiently, from her seat, in the shadow by the window, and with noiseless tread attempted her escape.

"Ah, Lisa, is that you?" said her sister, turning toward her. "Let me present my old friend, Mr. Hoadley. Miss Godfrey—Mr. Hoadley. You have heard me speak of Mr. Godfrey's sister—have you not?—though she was but a child when you left home. Her father has since died, and he placed her under my guardianship."

"What a beautiful girl! I wonder how my lady likes so powerful a rival?" was the thought that passed through the man's mind, as once more he made his low bow of formal greeting.

"What a thorough flirt! I know that I shall detest him," mentally soliloquized the girl.

But spite of her harsh judgment, when a few moments later she made her escape and left the two alone, the last words that he had uttered, hoping that he might know her better—words spoken by eyes as well as lips—rang in her memory; while out into the star lit night, an hour later, Howland Hoadley carried the pictured vision of a girl's face, lighted by gray eyes, dark and intense, below a low, white brow, shadowed by rippling waves of golden-chestnut hair.

What had made his manner so distrait? Mrs. Godfrey wondered. His greeting had been all that could be desired, but suddenly he had grown [illegible] and [illegible].

Ah, Lisa had interrupted them? She must let her understand that on the nights he called she would be alone. But to state this fact in words, Mrs. Godfrey had no need. Lisa seemed to have an instinctive idea when he might be [illegible], and though he [illegible] often he looked in vain for the gray eyes and mouth, which blended so strangely with scorn and sweetness, until at last fate rewarded him.

It was almost 10 one evening when, without intention of calling, he strolled by Mrs. Godfrey's house. It was a clear, moonlight night, and as he reached the balcony a flower fell at his feet. He glanced up. A slight figure stood above him, from whose hair had fallen the rose his fingers stooped to gather; but with her eyes upraised she failed to note the trespass until he spoke.

"It looks so tempting there, Miss Godfrey. May I come up for a moment?"

"[illegible]," she answered, a little startled that he could not see creeping into her cheek.

"[illegible]," he replied, with a touch of serious meaning in his voice. "Then [illegible] a way," and, mounting two or three of the steps, he seized the rail, and in another instant had vaulted over and stood beside her. "Why have you so persistently avoided me, Miss Godfrey?" he asked, abruptly, and his eyes searched her face. "Your face has haunted me since the night of my return," he went on as she made no answer. "Somehow I feel as if you hold an idle prejudice against me. I may deserve it—I am deserving of much, God knows; but I would like, if it were possible, to try and make my defense—to try and win you for my friend."

His voice was low almost to tenderness. Unconsciously it penetrated to the girl's heart. But, pshaw! was it not the same to all women? Had it not won for him the reputation of a thoroughly accomplished flirt?—so accomplished that he could simulate even truth itself.

"Why should you wish my friendship?" she said, averting her eyes from his as she spoke.

"Let me first gain it; then I will tell you," he answered.

"Ah, to you," she interrupted, "the pleasure lies only in pursuit. The prize you grasp is worthless. You have perfectly learned your art, Mr. Hoadley. Why should you seek to continue the lessons?"

"Prove me," he said.

She turned then, and glancing down, saw the rose he held in his hand. Instinctively her fingers sought her hair.

"You dropped it, and I picked it up. Will you not let me keep it during my time of trial? When you decide me unworthy of your friendship, I will return it to you, though it may then be withered and faded, like my hopes."

Was there magic in his tones that the barriers about her heart melted, and the lips in smiling forgot their scorn.

"Keep it," she answered.

But the next moment a cloud swept over the face of the moon, as Mrs. Godfrey, pale and watchful, swept out on the balcony.

"You here, Hoadley?" she said, in amazement mingled with anger. "I thought, Lisa, you were alone."

"She was until a few moments ago, when I almost forced my society upon her. Considering the temptation, I am hardly to be blamed," he went on, while Lisa, wondering at his hardness, left him to make his peace.

He had asked her to win her from his friend. Ah, had not her foolish woman's heart, spite of her knowledge of his character, too readily answered his prayer.

All in vain she battled with herself as the days merged into weeks; and each day and each succeeding week found him still assaulting the citadel whose ramparts, one by one, had fallen before him.

She knew now that he loved her. In such words as only he could coin he had told her so, and although her lips had made no answer, silence had told its own tale.

One evening, happy, trusting, she went down into the library to wait his promised coming, all her doubts and fears fled.

She had wronged him, she told herself, and even as the thoughts passed through her mind she stood transfixed.

The music-room, beyond the library was in shadow, but the faint light fell full on a man's figure, half kneeling and clasping a woman's hand. His tone, low and thrilling with entreaty, reached her ear.

"Fanny"—it was her sister's name—"be true to yourself and to me! Now, in this moment of supreme trial, do not desert me. Let the past be past, and the future speak for itself."

She waited to hear no more. Like a hunted deer she turned and fled up stairs, back to her own room.

A few moments later a servant knocked at her door.

"Mr. Hoadley was below and desired to see her."

Drawing her escritoire toward her, she hastily wrote:

"I am tired of playing a part. I had heard you were a desperate flirt and wished to cross steels. It is a drawn battle. Keep the rose, if you still have it, in memory of the contest. There has been nothing gained or lost, only do not let us meet again."

This note she dispatched in answer by the servant waiting, then fell prone upon the floor, and lay there until the morning dawned. Ah, for her there was no morning. She had saved her pride, but at what cost her soul only knew.

The next week Howland Hoadley's name again headed the list of outward bound passengers.

If Mrs. Godfrey noticed anything amiss, she said nothing, but her manner was more, as of old, not frigid and constrained, as it had been during the week of Howland's wooing.

A long year passed away, and once more Lisa stood on the balcony, alone with the moon and her sad thoughts. Here he had asked her to be his friend. To what end?

Bitter tears welled up from her eyes, when, as if conjured by her misery, as on that evening long ago, a form vaulted over the railing, and stood beside her.

"Lisa," said a voice she knew, too well, though she stood as marble, "you see once more I have found a way, spite of the fact that I left my home believing you a soulless coquette. I have ever thought of you, standing as you stand now, and the pictures do not blend. The girl I knew had both soul and heart, and soul and heart I once prayed God were for me. See, I have brought you your rose. I am either worthy or unworthy to keep it, and keeping it, it must be my future wife who gives it to me. Lisa, tell me, why did you write the words which sent me from my home, which struck like a knell at my heart in the very moment I believed myself to be supremely blessed?"

The girl hardened herself against his words.

"You forget," she said, "that you had already held one audience on that evening, at which I unconsciously assisted. Shall I send my sister, Mrs. Godfrey, to complete the drama? She is shortly to be married again, but perhaps this may not affect your interests in your path."

A light seemed to dawn on him.

"You heard me plead with her?" he questioned. "For what? Years before we had a silly flirtation, as I believed. Later I had learned she had cared for me more than I knew. She forgot her pride that night, Lisa. Do not force me to recur to it. I am glad to hear she has found happiness. I told her boldly of my love for you, and asked her to be true to us both, and to help rather than retard my wooing. I at last won her consent, and she promised to throw no obstacle in my way; yet she has kept silent during all this weary time. I know now she must have seen you standing in the doorway, and thus spoke the empty words she felt would never be destined to fulfillment. Oh, Lisa, once I asked your friendship! I give it back to you with this rose. Give me instead your love and—yourself!"

Is it because the moon had grown weary of the old, old story, that in this moment she sinks behind a cloud? The lovers do not miss her, nor are they conscious of the white face, which, from behind the parted curtains, takes one glance, then lets them fall, as Mrs. Godfrey smiles bitterly to herself that her revenge has cost to Howland Hoadley at least one year of happiness and that her part in it, though suspected, may never be definitely known.

FRIDAY EVENING, Dec. 3d.

The wheat market remains dull with prices at $1 50@1 47½. Owing to fear of the lower river closing charterers are making every possible effort to dispatch vessels. In consequence the Chandos and Ringleader sailed yesterday. The Childers sailed to-day and the Lallah Rookh will get away to-morrow. These departures will leave only the Edwin Reed in port. She is loading day and night and her charterers expect to send her down the river Monday. Our docks will then be bare for the first time at this season since Oregon commenced direct shipment to Europe.

CURED OF DRINKING.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for Liquor, that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. DR. PAUL M. BRENAN

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast.

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored,

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

Ordinance No. 2923.

AN ORDINANCE IN RELATION TO THE ASsessment and collection of taxes.

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

Section 1. That upon the filing of the assessment roll the auditor and clerk shall give notice by publication in some daily newspaper that said roll is open for inspection, and will remain open until the first day of January following, prior to which time all applications for correction of errors must be filed.

Sec. 2. Any person deeming himself aggrieved by the assessment valuation or listing of property may apply to the committee on ways and means for a revision of the same. Such application shall contain a list of all the property subject to taxation for city purposes owned by, in the hands of, or under the control of the applicant, and a concise statement of the particular item or items claimed to be erroneously assessed, which said application shall, in all cases be verified by the oath or affirmation of the applicant, and must be filed with the auditor and clerk before the first day of January following the date of filing of the assessment roll. As soon thereafter as practicable the committee on ways and means together with the auditor and clerk, shall carefully examine the same and report to the common council, such alterations and corrections as they may deem necessary and proper to be made.

Sec. 3. The assessment roll when revised and corrected, shall be accepted by the common council, which acceptance must be by resolution, and all general or special taxes when levied shall be extended thereon by the auditor, and said roll delivered to the treasurer for the collection of such taxes.

Sec. 4. Upon the receipt of such tax roll, the treasurer shall give notice by publication in some daily newspaper published in the city of Portland, that such taxes must be paid to him within thirty days or they will be returned as delinquent.

Sec. 5. The treasurer shall return said tax roll to the auditor at the expiration of 30 days from the date of notice provided by section four of this ordinance, with a statement of the amount collected, and all taxes unpaid at the time of making such return shall be deemed delinquent, and particularly designated upon the tax roll as such.

Sec. 6. When so directed by the common council, the auditor shall deliver the tax roll to the chief of police and annex thereto a warrant commanding him to collect the delinquent taxes therein named, in the manner provided by law. The chief of police shall return said warrant with his doings thereon, within 60 days from the date of its issue.

Sec. 7. The chief of police shall collect 5 per centum in addition to the cost of collection upon all delinquent taxes collected by him, as a fee for [illegible] in addition to such [illegible] delinquent taxes.

Sec. 8. Ordinance No. [illegible] entitled "An ordinance in relation to the assessment and collection of taxes," and all ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed.

Passed the Common Council, Dec. 1, 1880.

R. L. DURHAM,
Auditor and Clerk.

Approved Dec. 2, 1880.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER:

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.
